decades, the property has undergone several phases of renovation and restoration, each preserving key historical elements while adapting to changing needs. The castle's history is intertwined with the local community's development, reflecting broader trends in architectural tastes and urban planning during the period.

Origins and Initial Construction

The initial construction of the castle on Viola Street began in 1912, spearheaded by architect Edward Langston, who specialized in Gothic Revival and medieval-inspired designs. The choice of location on Viola Street was strategic, offering a serene environment away from the bustling city center, yet close enough to remain accessible.

Subsequent Renovations

Throughout the mid-20th century, the castle underwent several renovations to update its infrastructure and accommodate modern living standards.
