1. Long Way Down by Jason Reynolds

This novel in verse follows a young boy named Will who sets out to seek revenge after his brother is murdered. Told over the course of a single elevator ride, the story explores themes of grief, violence, and the cycle of retaliation. The book's powerful, concise narrative has resonated with readers and inspired adaptations, including visual and stage versions.

2. The Hate U Give by Angie Thomas

This contemporary novel centers on Starr Carter, a teenager who witnesses the police shooting of her unarmed friend. Addressing issues of racial injustice, activism, and the power of voice, the book offers a compelling look at modern social struggles. It has been adapted into a critically acclaimed film and is often compared to works like Long Way Down for its raw emotional impact.

3. All American Boys by Jason Reynolds and Brendan Kiely

Co-written by Jason Reynolds, this novel tackles police brutality and racial tensions through the perspectives of two high school boys—one black, one white. The story highlights the complexities of friendship and justice in a divided community. Its dual narrative style offers a nuanced exploration of systemic issues similar to those in Long Way Down.

4. Dear Martin by Nic Stone

In this thought-provoking novel, Justyce McAllister writes letters to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. as he grapples with racial profiling and police encounters. The story delves into identity, social justice, and the struggle to maintain innocence in a prejudiced world. Like Long Way Down, it addresses urgent societal themes relevant to young adults.

5. Monster by Walter Dean Myers

This gripping novel follows Steve Harmon, a teenager on trial for murder, who records his experiences in a film screenplay format. The book explores themes of identity, justice, and the complexities of the legal system. Its intense narrative style and exploration of crime and consequence make it a compelling companion read to Long Way Down.

6. Ghost by Jason Reynolds

The first book in the Track series, Ghost follows a young boy with a troubled past who discovers a talent for running. The novel addresses issues of trauma, resilience, and self-discovery with a hopeful tone. Jason Reynolds' signature style and engagement with real-life struggles make this a great related title.

7. Tyrell by Coe Booth

Set in the projects of New York City, Tyrell tells the story of a boy trying to support his family while navigating the dangers of his environment. The novel portrays the challenges of poverty, family loyalty, and survival, offering a raw and authentic voice much like Long Way Down. It's a poignant look at urban life and the choices young people face.

8. Inside Out and Back Again by Thanhha Lai

This novel-in-verse recounts the experiences of Hà, a young Vietnamese girl who immigrates to the United States after the Vietnam War. Though different in setting, it shares Long Way Down's poetic form and emotional depth. Themes of displacement, identity, and resilience are central to this touching story.

9. Speak by Laurie Halse Anderson

This powerful novel follows Melinda, a high school freshman who becomes mute after a traumatic event. The story explores themes of trauma, healing, and finding one's voice. Its emotional intensity and focus on personal struggle align it with the impactful storytelling seen in Long Way Down.
