The Nature of Madness in "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland"

Madness is a recurrent theme in "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland." Carroll's narrative often blurs the lines between sanity and insanity, leaving readers to ponder the nature of reality itself. The characters in Wonderland, particularly the Mad Hatter, the March Hare, and the Cheshire Cat, embody various aspects of madness that reflect deeper philosophical questions.

The Mad Hatter and the Concept of Time

One of the most iconic characters representing madness is the Mad Hatter. His famous line, "Why is a raven like a writing desk?" exemplifies the absurdity that permeates Wonderland. This riddle has no answer, mirroring the chaotic nature of the world Alice finds herself in. The Hatter's disjointed logic serves as a critique of societal norms and the rigid structures of Victorian society.

2. "We're all mad here. I'm mad. You're mad."
