Understanding Color Analysis

Color analysis is a technique used to determine which colors complement an individual's natural features, such as skin tone, hair color, and eye color. This process helps individuals identify their best shades, allowing them to make informed choices in fashion, makeup, and hair color. The concept is often divided into four seasonal palettes: Winter, Spring, Summer, and Autumn.

The Four Seasonal Palettes

1. Winter: Characterized by cool, bright colors. People in this category often have cool undertones and may have dark hair and bright eyes.
2. Spring: This palette is known for warm, bright colors. Individuals typically have warm undertones, often with light hair and light eyes.
3. Summer: This group features soft, muted colors with cool undertones. Individuals may have light or cool hair colors and soft eye colors.
4. Autumn: Autumn palettes consist of warm, earthy tones. Those in this category often have warm undertones, usually with rich hair colors and deep eye colors.

Hair Color

Bella's hair has varied over the years, ranging from deep brunette to lighter shades. Her natural dark hair complements the Winter palette, allowing her to wear a wide range of colors, especially jewel tones like emerald green, royal blue, and deep red.

Eye Color

Bella's striking brown eyes add depth to her color profile. The warmth in her eyes can sometimes soften the cool tones of the Winter palette, allowing for a blend of colors from both Winter and Summer.
