Question: How do you handle conflicts with coworkers?

Model Answer:

"In my previous role, I encountered a situation where a coworker and I had differing opinions on a project direction. Model Answer:

By ensuring open communication and encouraging each team member to voice their ideas, we were able to create a cohesive strategy that not only met the deadline but exceeded our client's expectations. I value a collaborative culture where everyone contributes and feels valued."

Question: Describe a time you adapted to a new work culture.

Model Answer:

"When I joined my last company, I was transitioning from a corporate environment to a startup. The pace was much faster, and the culture was more informal.
